TISHREI/CHESHVAN 5773

VOLUME 17, ISSUE 2

FROM RABBI ANNA BOSWELL-LEVY...

AVODAH — HOLY SERVICE

[Rabbi Anna began her sermon on Yom Kippur by admitting her own struggles with the

we have betrayed!” For all the mistakes, all the sins, all the hataim of every person, rest on us — even if we ourselves have not committed them ourselves. We shoulder responsibility for all of our people, just as the High Priest does. For [Yom Kippur], we are each one of us a High Priest....

Avodah (which means “holy service”) section of the Yom Kippur liturgy during which we recall the duties of the High Priest in the Temple in Jerusalem. Once a year, on the Day of Atonement, the High Priest would enter into the Holy of Holies, the most holy place within the Temple, utter the ineffable name of God, and plea on behalf of his people for forgiveness for all of their sins in the past year. This act of the High Priest was the most awesome and holy — and dangerous — of the entire year. The Priest could die if his actions were not accurate.

Rabbi Anna concluded by sharing her thoughts about how the actions of the High Priest in the ancient Temple relate directly to our lives.]

...Here is one person who wields immense power to make a difference on behalf of his people. The High Priest is a model for us of the power one single person can have to make a difference, to make an impact on our world today....

...[W]e call out “We have cheated, we have lied,

Each of the movements of the High Priest was critical. Likewise each of our actions is as well. It is critical whether you arrive on time, or if you are 5 minutes late. It is critical to pay attention when your spouse or your friend is speaking to you. It is critical to notice that your child has a poopy diaper. It is critical to use your turn signal when you are driving. It is critical to vote. It is critical to apologize when you misspeak, and it is critical to speak up when you see that something isn’t right. Your actions matter.

In Jewish teaching, a person is often seen as a world, a universe in microcosm. The Mishnah in Sanhedrin says, “If you save a life, you save the world entire.” ...We are important, we can make a difference, and our actions really do impact others, mostly in ways we can’t know. In Talmud Kiddushin it is written, “The world is judged by its majority, and an individual [too] is judged by his majority [of deeds]...happy is he for turning the scale both for himself and the whole world

School News

SUCCESS! We have found a fabulous master teacher who will help move our school into our new form. Stay tuned for more information about this enthusiastic addition to our community.

AND, as reported last month, we are moving to the George School library, pictured below! Our new space is new, beautiful, and fully equipped with all the elements of a classroom as well as cutting-edge technology — wifi, computer projection equipment, and smartboards. So now we can show students how to access their homework!

As always, for our school to thrive and be a vibrant part of our congregation, we need YOUR help. Please let me know how you can volunteer in our school! I want to ensure that even as our educational model and location change, our “lay” parent/member teachers and volunteers will remain the heart and unique spirit of our school.

The school registration form and an info sheet about the school have both been emailed to members. Please forward them to anyone you know who may be interested in our school! And please register your child and return the form to me asap.

The first day of classes will be Sunday, October 14th. Details will follow in email updates.

For more information about our school, contact Rabbi Anna at 215-287-5128 or rabianna@gmail.com.

Membership News

Please welcome our newest member, Holly Danni when you see her at events! Holly has gotten to know us over the past few months — including adding welcome “elbow grease” to our Tikkun a Room efforts in June! You can reach her at holly9858@gmail.com.

Spiritual Life News

The next Spiritual Life Committee meeting will be October 14 at 4:30 p.m. at Jeanlu Ryersbach's home: at 19 Mulberry Lane, Levittown, PA 19054.

Please call Arnie or me with any questions.

on its merit..." Whatever we do on a micro level is and has the potential to be reflected in the entire world.

The great medieval philosopher, physician, and rabbi Maimonides, in his work, Hilchot Teshuva/The Laws of Repentance, picks up on this theme. He writes, "Throughout the entire year, a person should always look at himself as equally balanced between merit and sin and the world as equally balanced between merit and sin. If he performs one sin, he tips the balance and that of the entire world to the side of guilt and brings destruction upon himself. [On the other hand,] if he performs one mitzvah, he tips his balance and that of the entire world to the side of merit and brings deliverance and salvation to himself and others."

Maimonides's proof for his assertion is found in Proverbs 10:25: "A righteous person is the foundation of the world." That is, one who acts righteously tips the balance of the entire world to merit and saves it.

You might, for example, believe that in this election year your vote doesn't really matter, especially when it's so clear how a few major donors and Super-PACs wield such disproportionate power. You may be disheartened by the new voter ID laws in Pennsylvania and many other states that in many ways discourage and even prevent the poor and the elderly from voting.

Whatever the issue, big or small, external or internal, on Yom Kippur more than any other day we are called to take personal responsibility for creating hope in our lives and our world. And the most direct way to hope is through the resolve to act. To stare down that which feels intractable and identify the actions we can take that will make a difference.

Yes, it's overwhelming to consider the systemic roots of these enormous and pervasive problems. However, we cannot surrender the conviction that individual actions do indeed make a difference in our world, in ways we often cannot quantify or understand.

We have it in our power ourselves to vote, and to do what we can to ensure that others are able to vote as well. Perhaps someone will see our example and speak to their great uncle, who is in a nursing home, about whether he has the right ID and the ability to get out to a polling booth.

As part of Rosh Hashanah services this year, for the Shofarot piece of the liturgy we as a congregation were encouraged to give examples of notable events that happened this past year. Howard Blumenthal contributed the following comments:

Perhaps last fall, as a result of gang violence in the USA this year, a young Arab woman's father was killed. She will become a member of the clergy, following in the footsteps of Martin Luther King, Jr. She will accomplish three things in her life: eliminate gang violence as a significant urban problem; eradicate poverty as a modern American plague; and outlaw nuclear weapons on the global stage.

In India, probably last spring, several students learned about open source software, and quickly connected with like-minded people around the world. In time, they will connect those people and encourage the sharing of ideas, and collaboration on projects that will assure freedom of speech and an equitable economy for an astonishing number of people in every nation.

Of course, these amazing occurrences haven't happened yet — but, according to Howard's creative mind, the path that makes these things possible has already begun.

Would that we knew, or even sensed, the power or the effect of our actions. What if we behaved as if our actions were no less critical than those of the High Priest. Like the High Priest, we cannot let our fear or sense of helplessness stop us from taking action. It doesn't have to be grand, but we must begin, we must take small steps and start with what we think just might be possible for us.

Rabbi Brant Rosen [a Reconstructionist rabbi in Evanston, Illinois, comments,] "Every opening of a door, every act of peacemaking, every move we make to heal the world around us has the potential to create a sacred transformation. They can make a difference in ways we can see readily and in ways we will never truly know. And lest I forget one more crucial point: such actions have the potential to transform our own lives as well. Isn't that what this time of year all about in the end?"

...No matter what may happen in the world around us, we are not simply bystanders bearing witness to eternal cycles' occurrences and recurrences. We can break these cycles, we can re-chart our courses, in a myriad of small and not so small ways. We are here to acknowledge a single truth, that each of us carries the same potential power of the High Priest.

...[M]ay we release what no longer serves us, and be strengthened and inspired to transform the world, starting with our actions, one important step at a time.

Yom Kippur 5773 — September 26, 2012

Rabbi Anna's complete Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur 2012/5773 sermons can be found online at www.tzedekvshalom.org/services/sermons.

Teen Class Starting Soon

The following is the announcement Rabbi Anna sent to TvS teens and their parents and reprinted in the September TvS News:

A teen group is going to happen this year! I will offer a once-a-month opportunity for teens to informally get together with me to study a little Torah and discuss how the text informs current events. The best time for me is on Sunday mornings at 11 a.m. for an hour and a half, at the George School library. Perhaps we could take turns bringing a little nosh — and I'll bring the texts and articles.

As this time dovetails with Religious School, I am hoping that some interested teens might be able to come earlier to help out in the school. Also, hopefully this once-a-month time frame will provide a regular time for teens to reconnect with one another and plan for other, more purely social ways to meet up.

Non-members teens are welcome to join the class for a reasonable fee.

Please let me know if you/your teen would be interested, and if you have any questions!

Blessings,
Rabbi Anna

Tikkun Olam News

Stay tuned for Tikkun Olam news as it develops next month. In the meantime... while searching for a poem with which to introduce my tallit dance this year, your editor googled “body prayer.” In line with Rabbi Abraham Joshua Heschel’s description of his participation in civil rights marches as praying with his legs, I found the following article, by Rabbi Gerry Serotta: “Praying with Our Whole Bodies: Subversive Prayer and Sacred Activism.” It seems to have circulated through the national Jewish Federation system. I found it here: <http://www.jewishcolumbia.org/page.aspx?id=30364>.

TvS Romeo and Juliet Club

The ROMEO and JULIET lunch club meets every month at a location generally determined when the group dines. For information about the venue for the October soiree, or any questions, please contact me.

We are saddened to share the news that Noa’s mom, Elsie Kuzma, passed away in early September. She had been living with Noa and Frumi and was a constant part of their lives. May Noa and Frumi be comforted among the mourners of Zion.

Mazel tov to Stephen Perloff, who spent a few September days in England, where he received the Colin Ford Award from the Royal Photographic Society, founded in 1853 by Roger Fenton and others. Stephen reports that among the Americans honored were several friends, including Tony Bannon, who recently retired as director of George Eastman House. Others included photographer Joel Meyerowitz; Kathy Ryan, photo editor of the NY Times Magazine; and Steven J. Sasson, the developer of the first digital camera. Not too shabby company, if you ask this editor!

Refuah Shleymah (Get Well Wishes)

Rob Weintraub reports that his mom, Elaine, is ill. She lives in Florida with his dad and is doing well. Rob would like us to mention her during healing service. Please also remember Arline Kessler, Paula Adler’s mother.

Thank you to everyone who helped to make our September Ice Cream Social and Open House a great event.

Overall, we had at least 50 folks, including many of our younger members — the kids — who added a lot of energy to a beautiful day.

Special thank you's go to Jennifer Garfield and Debby Bossio for organizing everything about the event. Debby was even able to get an ice cream donation from Baskin-Robins in Richboro. So be sure to visit there sometime soon.

Other folks who helped so much were Sharon Manas (scooped a lot of ice cream), Jerry Manas, Ralph Posmontier, Debby Bossio, Bobbie Posmontier (ice cream), Linda Gold, Marcia Gordon, Rabbi Anna (who welcomed everyone), as well as Jerry Manas and Joel Bacher who told their TvS stories. Special thanks also go to Jeanlu Ryersbach, Diane Gold, and Max Yaffe as our Community Builders.

And a HUGE thank you goes to Larry Garfield who conceived of our outreach drive and put it into action.

Our High Holidays happen each year with a lot of help from many people. First, we thank Rabbi Anna for her herculean and thoughtful preparation for our services. In addition, this year the following people were instrumental in making sure each event — from Selichot to our annual break-the-fast — was a success. Thank you to members and guests who spontaneously volunteer each year to lead a reading. In addition, thanks go to (in alphabetical and alphabetical order!)
